

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A network system is constructed by a client and a server. The client has a set information obtaining unit for requesting connection information to the 5 server by an information obtaining request using user ID information and setting the connection information received as its response. The server has a set information providing unit for transmitting the connection information which is obtained by using the 10 user ID information received from the client to the client.